CONCEPT NOTE

Blended learning, the integration of interactive technology with traditional classroom settings, holds significant relevance for faculty development programs in higher education institutions in India. With the advent of the National Education Policy (NEP) 2020, which emphasizes the need for technology integration and learner-centric approaches, blended learning offers a transformative pedagogical model. By combining face-to-face instruction with online learning, blended learning provides flexibility, personalized learning pathways, and enhanced student engagement. It aligns with the NEP's vision of multidisciplinary education, continuous learning, and the use of technology to improve pedagogy.

This program aims to equip educators with the knowledge and tools necessary for effective implementation. These programs emphasize the importance of designing learning activities that optimize both in-person and online interactions, utilizing technology tools and learning management systems, and fostering collaborative environments.

Moreover, blended learning, in the context of higher education in India, provides an opportunity to reimagine and transform education. By integrating face-to-face interactions with technology-driven tools and resources, educators can create dynamic and engaging learning experiences. Blended learning fosters a learner-centric environment, catering to diverse student needs and interests. It enables the integration of multimedia content, collaborative online platforms, and self-paced learning opportunities, equipping students with the skills and knowledge required in the rapidly changing world. Through this faculty development program, educators are empowered to embrace blended learning, aligning their practices with the goals of the NEP 2020 and preparing students for the future.
